PREFACE

The present is the Twenty-eighth Edition of the Merchants', Manufacturers' and Shippers' Directory of the World, which was first published in 1877, and the twenty-third annual issue.

We may confidently assert that we have spared no pains to make the book as correct as possible, and with this object we have in recent years largely extended the area actually covered by our travelling Agents. Starting from our Head Office in London, they have again corrected the lists for the 1914 edition for all the principal cities and ports of Northern, Central and Southern Europe, of India, Japan, &c., of North Africa and Egypt, of Central and South America, of the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand, &c., whilst others working from our Branch Office in New York have corrected those for all the important towns in the United States, the Dominion of Canada, &c. ; others, again, working from our Branch Office at Hamburg, have done the same for Germany, Austria-Hungary, Russia, &c. For correct information as to the remoter and smaller towns and ports we have had largely to depend upon the courteous and invaluable assistance rendered to us by H.M.'s Consuls and Vice-Consuls, by the Secretaries of Chambers of Commerce, &c.

Classified Lists of the Export and Import Merchants of the United Kingdom have been given as heretofore in a separate section at the end of the volume.

The aim of the Directory is to give in a single volume, not only the names of the Manufacturers, Merchants, Exporters, &c., of the United Kingdom trading with the Colonies and abroad, but also those of all the more important Foreign Merchants (whether Exporters to or Importers from the United Kingdom), and, further, those of the Manufacturers of the principal goods imported into the United Kingdom. The book thus furnishes a guide to both the Import and the Export Trades of the World, containing a large amount of information not to be found in any other book.

The want of such a work is abundantly proved at once by its constantly growing sale in Great Britain and the steadily increasing demand for it abroad. A copy is generally to be found in the office of every

British Consulate of importance, and British Consuls abroad have for many years past expressed themselves very strongly on the subject of its great value to Traders owing to the full information given in its pages as to the Merchants (Import and Export), the Manufacturers, &c., in all parts of the World.

Merchants, Manufacturers and others will remember that many years ago considerable correspondence took place between the various Chambers of Commerce of England and the Foreign Office as to the amount of assistance to British trade which should be rendered by the Diplomatic and Consular Services abroad ; and that it was suggested that Consuls should keep a registry of persons willing to act as Agents abroad for British Traders, &c., &c.

It was then pointed out by the Consuls, with scarcely an exception, that it was practically impossible for them to do more in the way of promoting British trade than they were actually doing, viz., as far as possible to state the goods required in their Consular districts, while the pushing of trade must be left to the Merchants and Manufacturers themselves, who for this purpose should employ travellers, issue prospectuses, &c., &c.

In reference to this correspondence the Publishers communicated with the late Lord Iddesleigh (then the British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs), asking that instructions might be given by the Foreign Office to the British Consuls abroad to supply them with such information for publication in this book as might be considered of advantage to the Manufacturers, Merchants, and Traders generally.

In reply his Lordship was then pleased to point out that :—

"It would be a matter not only of great difficulty but also of much delicacy for Her Majesty's Consuls to give lists of trustworthy Merchants, "Agents, Lawyers, &c., and it will be readily understood that their attempting to do so might not unfrequently lead to invidious complaints against "them, and involve both themselves and this (the Foreign) Office in unpleasant discussions.

"As, however, your Foreign Directory appears to be a work of considerable value to British Trade, Lord Iddesleigh would be glad that "Her Majesty's Consuls should assist, as far as possible, in making it complete, and he will not object to their giving, on your application, such "information of the nature specified as they may think advisable. But in view of the difficulties alluded to, His Lordship cannot issue any "general instructions on the subject, and must leave it to each Consul to give or withhold the information desired according to local circumstances "and a proper regard for his official position.

"I am to suggest that in corresponding with Her Majesty's Consular Offices you might send them a copy of this letter, as showing to what "extent your inquiries had received the sanction of the Secretary of State."

As the result of this reply we have long been favoured by the various Consuls with a vast amount of information which it would have been practically impossible for us to have obtained without their assistance.

The Publishers have to tender their most grateful thanks to H.B.M. Consuls, the Consuls of Foreign Powers, Secretaries of Chambers of Commerce, Lloyd's Agents, Bankers, Merchants and others in all parts of the World, who have kindly assisted them with information.

CUSTOMS TARIFFS.

The "Customs Tariffs of the World" have since 1903 been published annually as a separate and companion work to this Directory. Every effort has been made to bring the contents of the 1914 edition of this Book up to date, a task which is the more difficult owing to the frequency with which Foreign Tariffs are made the subject of material alterations.

REGULATIONS IN FORCE IN BRITISH INDIA, BRITISH SELF-GOVERNING DOMINIONS, THE CROWN COLONIES AND PROTECTORATES AND FOREIGN COUNTRIES WITH REGARD TO COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS

BRITISH INDIA, BRITISH SELF-GOVERNING DOMINIONS, THE CROWN COLONIES AND PROTECTORATES.

BRITISH INDIA.

No special regulations or taxes exist in any province of British India affecting commercial travellers, nor are they required to take out licences, but foreigners, other than officials, are prohibited from entering the State of Jammu and Kashmir and Baghelkhand States without a pass from the political agent or the darbar. These passes are, however, given freely to respectable persons. In the Sirchi State all travellers have to take a guide with them for the protection of life and property.

ADMISSION OF SAMPLES.

Articles liable to duty serving as patterns or samples imported by commercial travellers from the United Kingdom into British India will be admitted free of duty, subject to the observance of certain prescribed regulations.

These regulations prescribe, inter alia, that on the production by a traveller of a list or declaration containing a full description of every sample brought by him, officially attested by the Customs Authorities in the United Kingdom, examination of the samples may be limited to ascertaining that they are fully enumerated in the list produced.

This list is to be utilised in assessing the duty chargeable on samples. A deposit of the duty is required before delivery of the samples, or alternatively a bond (with sufficient security) for the amount thereof may be accepted instead of a cash deposit.

In the ordinary course of events a drawback of seven-eighths of the duty paid on all articles imported is granted on exportation within two years if exported from the original port of import, and within three years if from any other port, provided the Customs officer at the port of final exportation is satisfied as to the identity of the goods.

If the traveller is unprovided with the list referred to, he may be required to produce before the collector of Customs a certificate or letter of identity from his principals, or otherwise satisfy the collector of his eligibility for the concession. If the collector is satisfied on this point, a list will be compiled by the traveller giving a full description of every sample sufficient for identification and assessment of the duty chargeable thereon.

To obtain a refund of the duty originally deposited, the traveller is required to produce with his samples the list thereof, signed by the officers at the port of arrival—provided that the time allowed for production (viz., 12 months) has not been exceeded, and the Customs officers are satisfied that the goods as produced are identical with those enumerated on the list.

All samples of no commercial value are entitled to free entry.

Patterns and samples of dutiable articles may be produced to the Customs officers at any port in British India for examination prior to exportation. Non-dutiable samples are not required to be produced on shipment.

Samples not intended for sale re-imported by commercial travellers into British India are passed free of duty, provided that the collector of Customs at the port of re-importation is satisfied (1) that duty was paid on first import, (2) of the identity of the articles, (3) that no drawback was paid on export, (4) that the ownership in the articles has not changed since their first import, and (5) that not more than six months have passed since the articles were exported.

In such municipalities and cantonments as levy octroi, samples of a taxable nature would be subject to that tax, and the importer entitled to a refund on exportation. Samples brought by commercial travellers to the Beawar Municipality, however, are not liable to octroi.

In most Native States of India, duty is levied on the value of the samples actually sold, and the deposit taken for samples imported is returned if goods are not sold. Refund is allowed in Indore, Malua, Jaipur, Kotah and Jhalawar at the same post, provided the goods are exported within seven days in the case of Indore, eight to ten days in the case of Malua, such time as may be fixed in the case of Jaipur, four months in the case of Kotah, and one month in the case of Jhalawar. In Kotah the period of four months may be extended if sufficient cause is shown. In Bikanir, the Western Rajputana States and Hyderabad, refunds are granted if the goods are exported within 15 days or three or six months, respectively, of the date of import. The goods may be exported from any place within the States and by any route whether by rail or road. In Kashmir seven-eighths of the duty is refunded on exportation, provided that the goods are satisfactorily identified, and that the duty exceeds Rs.5. It is not necessary in Kashmir to export goods by the post at which they entered the State. No duty is charged on samples imported to or exported from Bundelkhand, or on goods passing through Kashmir on their way to Central Asia. In Baroda samples brought by commercial travellers, and worth more than one rupee, are subject to Customs duty according to the rates in force in the State. In Karauli a passport entitling a commercial traveller to free passage for his goods is issued free of charge, and this pass is valid for 15 days; but duty is charged on the expiry of this period. In Bharatpur a similar passport is issued valid for one week. This period may, however, be extended to one month. In Quetta (Baluchistan) octroi is charged on goods when imported, but is refunded on whatever portion remains unsold if exported within one month of the date of import.

BRITISH SELF-GOVERNING DOMINIONS.

COMMONWEALTH OF AUSTRALIA.

There are no laws or regulations in force in any way affecting commercial travellers. Travellers from any country are not subject to any special taxes or restrictions, and are at liberty freely to enter and to travel within the Commonwealth.

Samples:—If dutiable, the duty may be deposited with the Customs and the amount so deposited will be refunded if taken out of the Commonwealth within six months.

If of no commercial value or not dutiable under the tariff, all that is necessary on arrival is to pass a free entry at the Customs.

British samples are entitled to the benefits of the British Preferential Tariff. In Tasmania, resident agents of firms not domiciled in the colony require an importer's licence of £10 per annum.

Income tax is leviable on profits on all goods sold and shipped to Queensland when such sale results "from the representations" made by a travelling agent who visits the State on behalf of a principal, whether the principal carries on business in other parts of Australia or Oversea, and whether the order was taken by the Agent or was sent to the principal through other channels. If the profit assessable "cannot," in the opinion of the Income Tax Commissioner, "be otherwise satisfactorily determined," it may be assessed at 5 per cent. of the net amount for which the goods have been sold or disposed of. The tax leviable is 5 per cent. on that 5 per cent., and in every case the amount assessable is deemed to be the income derived by the Agent.

DOMINION OF NEW ZEALAND.

Commercial travellers are not permitted to carry on business without a "warrant" from the commissioner of taxes or the collector of Customs. The warrant is issued free of charge, but the agent or traveller attempting to transact business in the colony without a warrant is liable to a penalty of from £2 to £5).

Commercial travellers are subject to the provisions of the income tax law. In order to insure the payment of the tax, the traveller is required upon arrival in the colony to make a deposit, usually £10. Before leaving the colony the traveller is required to furnish a complete return of the value of the merchandise sold by him or for which orders have been received, and income tax is charged thereon. It is levied not only on the profits from the orders taken personally, but on the total business resulting from the visit. The amount of the tax due is charged up to the deposit of £10, and the difference, if any, is returned upon departure; if the amount exceeds the deposit, the excess must be paid by the traveller before leaving the country.

Samples are subject to the usual rates of duty (odd gloves, boots and the like are treated as of half the value of the complete articles); but if the traveller intends to re-export them, he may deposit the amount due with a declaration to that effect and have the money refunded at the time of his departure after the samples have been identified by the Customs officers, provided such re-exportation takes place within six months.

Arrangements have been made whereby samples imported by British commercial travellers may be examined and plombed by the Customs authorities in the United Kingdom so as to obviate examination on the other side. A descriptive list of the samples must be drawn up and attested by them.

DOMINION OF CANADA.

There are no special regulations affecting British commercial travellers. Such travellers are not required to take out licences to carry on their calling, except as regards the sale of liquor and tobacco. If, however, a commercial traveller acts as agent for companies registered in the United Kingdom, such companies may be required to take out licences to trade.

ADMISSION OF SAMPLES.

Samples, together with the trunks and other packages containing them (except when of "no commercial value"), are subject to the ordinary Customs duty, but not to special duty in addition thereto. A refund of the duty may be obtained on re-exportation within 12 months, provided that they have been marked by a Customs officer at the time of entry and identified by a Customs officer on exportation. Customs officers may allow rebate of duty under the preferential tariff on samples of British origin arriving from any British country upon declaration of the traveller.

Commercial travellers are required to deliver to the Customs officer for entry purposes an invoice or statement in detail, showing the wholesale price of each sample as sold for home consumption; such invoice or statement shall be attested to by the traveller, and the quantities of such samples shall be duly checked and proper duty paid thereon before delivery.

Imported samples (not Canadian produce or manufacture) are subject to duty at each time of importation; provided, however, that the trunks in which samples are contained may be admitted free after payment of duty on first importation, if identified to the satisfaction of the Customs officer.

Cards, portfolios, pasteboard boxes, or other coverings containing cut samples of cloth, edgings, textile fabrics, buttons of various patterns, and other articles obviously for use only as samples to sell by and having no commercial value, may be admitted free of duty; the term "no commercial value" does not, however, apply to portfolios, boxes, or other coverings used in displaying samples when susceptible to other use or having a saleable value.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

There are no laws or regulations. Samples are subject to the ordinary Customs duty when they have a commercial value. The trunks and other packages in which such articles are imported are also subject to duty. If re-exported within six months a refund of the duty may be obtained upon production of a certificate of a landing or examining officer identifying the goods and the quantity thereof; this certificate must be attached to the export entry. The claim should be made on Form No. N. F. 12, Claim for Drawback, properly filled in, and, with landing certificate for foreign customs, duly signed.

Commercial travellers are required to deliver to the Customs officer, for entry purposes, an invoice or statement in detail showing the wholesale price of each sample, as sold for home consumption in the port or place from which it was imported. Such invoice or statement shall be attested by the traveller and proper duty paid thereon before they are delivered.

Imported samples are subject to duty at each time of importation; however, trunks in which such samples are contained may be admitted, free after payment of duty on first importation, if they can be identified to the satisfaction of the Customs officer.

Cards, portfolios, pasteboard boxes, and other covering containing cut samples of cloth, edgings, textile fabrics, buttons of various patterns, and other articles obviously for use only as samples to sell by, and having no commercial value, may be admitted free of duty.

The term "no commercial value" does not, however, apply to portfolios, boxes, or other coverings used in displaying samples, when susceptible to other use or having a saleable value.

SOUTH AFRICAN UNION.

Samples imported into any of the Colonies are treated the same as merchandise intended for consumption. Duty must be paid upon samples, but when it has once been paid at port of entry, within the Customs Union, upon presentation of proper forms giving specific description of the samples, so that they can be readily identified, they are admitted free into all of the other Colonies until they have been withdrawn from the territory included in the Customs Union. Great care should be exercised to obtain the proper descriptive blanks and receipts for the duty at the original port of entry, as this will avoid all difficulty in passing from one colony to another.

Upon re-exportation of samples within one year of importation a refund may be had of the duty paid.

Travellers who have paid deposits on their samples at any port in the Union of South Africa, and then proceed to Rhodesia, may, on leaving Rhodesia at Buluwayo or Umtali with a view to embarkation at Beira, secure a refund of the deposits at those places, on such articles as are re-exported, provided the Customs collector is satisfied as to the identity thereof, the duty payable on samples which have been disposed of being retained.

CAPE COLONY.

The annual licence in Cape Colony is £50, and one-half of that amount for the half year terminating June 30 or December 31. This licence entitles the holder to represent only one foreign firm, and for every additional firm represented a further £5 per annum (or £2 10s. per half year) is charged up to a maximum of £100 or £50 respectively. If agents or travellers for foreign firms have been resident in South Africa for at least three years immediately prior to their application for a licence, only one-half the amounts are charged.

When agents of foreign firms sell the samples of the goods they carry, they require, in addition, a hawker's licence; if they open sample rooms, and effect their sales therefrom, a general dealer's licence is required.

NATAL.

The annual licence required for commercial travellers costs £10. This is available during the 12 months for which it is obtained, and may be procured from any magistrate. There is no municipal or other tax on the traveller, who may canvass the entire Colony upon the single licence, and all commercial travellers are liable for this tax irrespective of their firm's nationality. Every licence expires on December 31, but those taken out after June 30 cost but three-fifths of the annual licence

ORANGE FREE STATE.

Commercial travellers, British or foreign, must be provided with a licence of £5 for three months. If taking orders for liquors, the licence fee is £20. Under that licence a commercial traveller can represent and take orders for one or more firms. Principals of firms travelling for the purpose of taking orders fall under exactly the same conditions as their agents. Travellers selling their samples require a hawker's licence, or, if they open sample rooms, a general dealer's licence, as in Cape Colony.

TRANSVAAL.

The licence duties payable by every agent or representative of a manufacturing or trade establishment carrying on business outside this Colony are £10 yearly and £6 half-yearly. All licences when issued for one year or for any period longer than half a year expire on December 31 then next; when issued for half a year or for any shorter period the licence expires, if issued before June 30, on that day, and if issued after June 30, it ceases on December 31 then next. If a practice were made of selling samples, the Revenue Department would require that a hawker's or general dealer's licence be taken out.

OTHER BRITISH POSSESSIONS & PROTECTORATES.

ANTIGUA.

There are no special regulations. Commercial travellers are not subject to the payment of any licence fees provided they confine themselves to the solicitation of orders from samples and do not carry goods for sale. If, however, they should carry goods for sale a pedlar's licence of 5s. is chargeable, and if they retain a room or store from which sales are effected, a licence of 25s. is due.

No duty is paid on samples if they are re-exported when the traveller leaves the island. Upon arriving at the colony a deposit is left by the traveller with the Customs authorities for the amount of duty. Upon leaving the island the duty on the articles sold or unaccounted for is deducted from the deposit and the remainder returned to the traveller.

BAHAMAS.

No special regulations exist, and no licences are required.

Samples of no commercial value are admitted duty free; in the case of other samples the amount of duty leviable must be deposited, a refund being granted on the re-exportation of the goods.

BARBADOS.

Commercial travellers and other persons seeking orders for goods are not subject to any special tax or licence fee, but persons visiting Barbados who import goods for sale must obtain a licence from the parochial treasurer of the parish of St. Michael. The charge for such licence is determined by the quantity and value of the goods in question; but the rate charged shall not exceed proportionately the sum payable by resident traders.

Samples without commercial value are exempt from duty; samples having a commercial value are liable to the ordinary rates of Customs duties, but drawback is allowed on exportation, provided the identity of the samples or specimens is proved to the satisfaction of the Customs. There is no limit as to the period of exportation.

Resident agents are liable to payment of a trade tax on all goods sold for delivery in the colony, and commercial travellers who have permanent offices in the colony are liable to this tax.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE.

An agent of a foreign firm, defined as any person other than an importer, who sells or offers for sale, by sample or otherwise, goods of a firm whose place of business is not in the Protectorate, pays a licence tax of £10 per annum. A traveller holding this licence needs no further licence to sell his samples. The definition does not include a person who sells or offers for sale goods consigned to him by a firm whose place of business is not in the Protectorate.

A commercial traveller representing more than one firm is not required to take out a separate licence for each firm which he represents.

Duty on goods imported into this Protectorate is collected at the Cape Colony and Natal Coast ports. For information concerning the treatment of travellers' samples, see under "South African Union."

BERMUDA.

No special regulations or taxes exist, nor are licences required.

Samples are liable to duty only if of commercial value. There are no regulations, but arrangements exist by which the duty may be deposited in view of re-exportation, and the samples can be shipped at either Hamilton or St. Georges. The period within which the re-exportation must take place is not limited.

BRITISH EAST AFRICA.

No special regulations exist, and no licences are required except in the case of travellers who sell samples of the goods they carry within any township area; they are subject to a hawker's licence. On the importation of samples the Customs authorities require a deposit of the duty leviable thereon, such duty to be refunded to the traveller in part or in whole on satisfactory proof being given to the Customs department that a part or the whole of the samples have been re-exported from any port in the Protectorate. There is at present no re-exportation time-limit after which the duty deposit would fall into the revenue, but a limit of six months is proposed.

BRITISH GUIANA.

Provision is made for the free importation, under certain prescribed conditions, of articles liable to duty serving as patterns or samples introduced into the colony by commercial travellers. All such patterns or samples are to be re-exported or placed in bond within six months from the date of first delivery as shown on the certificate prepared by the officer examining the samples on importation.

In those instances in which commercial travellers have numerous packages of samples, &c., accompanied by detailed lists of the contents of each separate package, only one package in three need be thoroughly examined at import and again at exportation, provided the goods actually contained in the case are found to agree with the goods specified on the list. Where discrepancies occur, except of a very trifling nature, the total contents of each case must be examined. All such samples are to be examined either at the receiving stores or at the colonial bonded warehouse.

Dutiable goods imported into the colony as samples may be admitted as such without payment of duty, provided that the comptroller of Customs or sub-comptroller is satisfied that such goods are bonâ fide samples imported in the ordinary course of commercial business, and that the duty payable on any one sample shall not exceed two dollars, and further that the duty payable on the aggregate of samples imported at any one time shall not exceed five dollars. When the aggregate duty exceeds five dollars, such excess should be paid in the ordinary way.

The regulations also state the conditions under which packages of restricted goods (wines, spirits, tobacco, &c.) of less than the legal size or weight may be admitted, the methods to be adopted in the sampling of goods in warehouses, and conditions under which drawback of duty is allowed on the exportation of hard bread and crackers, candles or clothing made from duty-paid imported materials.

BRITISH HONDURAS

Commercial travellers are required to procure a licence subject to a fee of $10 per annum. If they wish to sell their samples they further need a pedlar's licence of $5—in the case of jewellery this licence costs $25.

Samples.—On arrival a list is furnished the Customs officer of all samples carried by the traveller, and the duty is paid in cash, or its payment guaranteed by a bond. On departure the list is checked. Unsold samples are free of duty, while those sold or unaccounted for are subject to duty, which is deducted from the deposit. Samples of no commercial value are not subject to payment of duty. There is no time limit for the exportation of the samples.

CEYLON.

No special regulations exist, nor are licences required.

Samples of no commercial value are free of import duty. In the case of samples of value, the traveller makes a declaration as to their nature and value, stating that they are imported for purposes of trade only and not for sale. The traveller then deposits the amount of duty leviable, and the goods are delivered after such examination as the collector deems sufficient. The deposit is refunded on the re-exportation of samples, less the amount due for any samples missing. No period is fixed for exportation, but this varies in each case according to the desire of the traveller, a reasonable period being allowed. The samples may be exported from any port.

CYPRUS.

There are no special regulations and no licences are required even for the sale of samples.

Samples are subject to duty only if of commercial value, and the duty is refunded on re-exportation from any port in the island within a reasonable period, say three months, though no time limit has been definitely fixed.

DOMINICA.

Commercial travellers disposing of goods are regarded as pedlars, and are required to obtain a trade licence at a cost of from 15s. to £5, according to the value of the goods involved and other circumstances. The fee, however, seldom exceeds 20s.

Travellers representing more than one firm, and principals of firms travelling to take orders or to visit their customers are subject to no special regulations.

Baggage of commercial travellers is examined by a Customs officer, and any cut patterns or other samples of no commercial value are passed without restriction. A list is taken of samples of saleable value, and a deposit required of a sum equivalent to the duty, which is returned when the samples are re-exported, the duty on any article which may have been sold being deducted. Samples upon which a deposit has been made must be exported from the port at which imported within three months.

Goods (not being bonâ-fide samples) imported by a commercial traveller are subject to the ordinary Customs regulations. If exported within twelve months a drawback of the full amount paid is allowed.

FALKLAND ISLANDS.

There are no regulations or restrictions except in the case of spirits, wines, malt liquors or tobacco, samples of which are subject to duty whether stated to be of commercial value or not, and for the sale of which licences must be obtained.

FIJI.

No licences are required, and no special regulations exist. Samples are liable to duty in the ordinary way, but the amount paid is allowed as drawback on their re-exportation, provided this takes place within three years; advertising matter is admitted free of duty; goods may be shipped from any port of entry and obtain drawback.

GAMBIA.

No special regulations or taxes exist, whether the traveller represents more than one firm or not.

Travellers are not allowed to sell samples when leaving the colony except by special permission and on payment of a fixed duty; a hawker's or trader's licence would also be needed.

No Customs regulations affecting samples. All samples of commercial value pay the usual Customs duty if sold in the Colony. Samples are generally allowed to be imported and exported free of duty upon examination by the Customs authorities. For goods imported and exported within one year in the same packages a drawback of 95 per cent. is allowed on the duty paid, provided the duty amounts to £1 and upwards.

GIBRALTAR.

No regulations are in force, and no licences are required.

Spirituous liquors, tobacco and cigars are the only dutiable articles, and small samples of these are allowed in free at the discretion of the Revenue authorities.

GOLD COAST.

No special regulations or taxes exist, and no licences are required. Samples of no commercial value, as well as samples of commercial value if bonâ fide samples and evidently not for sale, are not charged duty.

GRENADA.

No special regulations or taxes exist, nor are licences required.

Samples of no commercial value are not liable to duty; those of commercial value are checked and valued, and a deposit equivalent to the import duty is required, which is returned when the goods are re-checked and placed in the Government warehouse prior to shipment.

HONGKONG.

This is a free-trade colony in all things except alcoholic liquors, which are dutiable, and neither as to the admission of samples nor as to treatment of commercial travellers is there any reference in the ordinances, laws, or regulations.

JAMAICA.

No trade licence is required nor any fees imposed. Samples having a commercial value are entitled to a reduction of 25 per cent. from the regular duty if remaining on the island. The amount of the duty plus 10 per cent. thereof is deposited in cash with the Customs authorities on arrival at the colony, the amount being refunded to the traveller when leaving the colony for all samples re-exported by him. The usual time allowed for re-exportation is six months. If the samples brought happen to be "cut" or of no commercial value, no deposit is necessary.

MALAY FEDERATED STATES.

No special regulations are in force, and no import duties are levied except on liquors and opium, and small quantities of the former, brought as samples, are generally passed duty free, though no guarantee is given that the right to collect duty will not be enforced.

MALTA.

In Malta there are no regulations or taxes, nor is any licence required.

Samples are exempted from duty if they are of no commercial value. Samples of commercial value, if intended for disposal in the Island, are charged duty. If for exportation, they are either deposited at the Custom House, or delivered to well-known local firms on guarantee. In the latter case, the samples must not remain in the Island for more than three months.

MAURITIUS.

Commercial travellers are not subjected to any special tax or licence charge, provided they do not intend to dispose of any goods they may bring with them. A commercial traveller selling goods at a fixed place is required to pay the licence fee of 100 rupees (£6 13s. 4d.) per six calendar months fixed for a "commission merchant or agent who orders and receives imported goods on account of others whether such goods be imported in his own name or not." If he wishes to hawk the goods, a hawker's licence will be necessary. Samples of no commercial value are exempt from import duty; other samples are dutiable, but arrangements exist whereby they may be delivered on deposit of the amount due as duty. This deposit is returned provided the goods are exported within three months, duty being retained for any parcel disposed of and not reshipped.

MONTSERRAT.

No special regulations exist, and no taxes are imposed. Samples are checked by the Customs authorities on the arrival and departure of the traveller. Any samples sold are charged duty at the usual rates. In some instances a deposit may be demanded and returned when the goods are exported within three months. There is no limit as to the time when samples must be exported. Samples of no commercial value are not liable to duty.

NORTH BORNEO.

No special laws or regulations. Samples of no commercial value are allowed to enter free of duty, but samples which appear to be for sale or of commercial value are subject to duty, which need not be paid, however, until the departure of the traveller from the country.

A deposit of the approximate duty on the total value would be demanded pending re-exportation, which must take place from the port of importation within any reasonable period (say three months) from the date of importation.

Commercial travellers are required to supply the Customs authorities with a list of the samples that they bring into the country, and, on their departure, they will be charged duty for any samples which have been sold.

NORTHERN NIGERIA.

There is no legislation regarding commercial travellers as such, but if goods are exposed for sale a trader's licence is required. Where the licensee is not a shopkeeper or station holder this licence costs £1 per annum. Goods imported by sea are liable to Customs supervision in Southern Nigeria, and the regulations in force in that colony apply in Northern Nigeria.

NYASALAND PROTECTORATE.

There are no special regulations or taxes. No licences are necessary for travellers unless they carry on business in such a way as to subject them to the £10 annual trading licence or £4 annual hawker's licence. It should be noted, however, that merely taking orders in the country from dealers who buy to sell again does not constitute trading as far as the necessity for a trading licence is concerned. Travellers do not come under the Pedlar's Act. No regulations exist regarding the representation of more than one firm.

With regard to samples, the ordinary import duty of 10 per cent. is charged, but refunded in case of exportation. In case of any being sold, the traveller has been asked to take out a £10 trading licence. There are no special Customs regulations on the subject.

Liquor sellers, in addition, pay an annual perambulating licence of £100.

PAPUA.

There are no special regulations concerning commercial travellers. Samples having a commercial value are subject to duty, which, however, is refunded on exportation from any Customs port within two years.

RHODESIA.

The licence payable in the Chartered Company's territory by commercial travellers and agents representing business houses domiciled outside of Rhodesia is £30 per annum.

ST. HELENA.

No special regulations exist, and no licences are required except for the sale of wines, spirits and beer. Samples of wines spirits and beer are liable to duty; other goods pay a small wharfage charge only. No rebate is allowed on subsequent exportation.

ST. LUCIA.

No special regulations or taxes are in force, nor are licences required.

Samples are not liable to import duty if of no commercial value: nor are they, even if of value, provided they are intended solely for purposes of exhibition. The custom is for the revenue department to satisfy themselves of the extent and quantity of the samples brought in, and to see that they are shipped with the agent on his departure. Any goods found to be short on the outward tally are liable to duty at the ordinary tariff rates.

ST. VINCENT.

No special regulations exist, nor are any special taxes imposed. Import duty on samples is payable only if they are disposed of.

As regards payment of Customs duty, a commercial traveller has either to pay a deposit sufficient to cover the duty on any goods likely to be disposed of—the deposit being returned to him on his departure, less duty on such as may have been disposed of; or have such samples as he may desire to display opened and checked in the presence of a Customs officer, and checked and repacked in the presence of a Customs officer before he leaves, duty being paid on anything sold.

SEYCHELLES.

No special regulations exist, but a commercial traveller may be taxed in proportion to his term of residence in the colony.

If a commercial traveller imports goods for sale he must be licensed either as a wholesale dealer, a wholesale and retail dealer consolidated, or as a retail dealer, in any particular branch or branches of trade he may carry on.

Samples pay duty except when they have no value. If samples have not been unpacked, seven-eighths of the duty is refunded, provided the amount of the refund is not less than 5 rupees, on exportation within three years from the date of importation. The duty is payable on all goods, samples of value included, upon importation.

SIERRA LEONE.

There are no special regulations.

Samples, if of no commercial value, are not liable to duty, but duty is levied on samples of value. Duty may be deposited in view of exportation, or a bond may be given for payment of duty. The goods must be re-exported from the port at which imported, or to which permitted to be removed. If duties are secured by a deposit, exportation must take place within one month, or within such further period, not exceeding three months, as the collector of Customs may allow.

SOUTHERN NIGERIA.

No licences are required, and no special taxes exist. Commercial travellers dealing in spirits are obliged to take out spirit licences, and gunpowder and shot are sold under certain restrictions.

The following Customs regulations are in operation in connection with the importation of commercial travellers' samples:—

(a) Packages which are being entered at the Customs House as samples must be examined before delivery is allowed, and if the officer in charge is satisfied that the articles are bonâ-fide samples, and do not exceed a reasonable quantity, having regard to the importer's trade, free entry may be accepted.

(b) Samples of spirits must not be passed as such without reference to the officer in charge of the Customs station.

(c) A permit may be issued to commercial travellers allowing them to obtain delivery of any articles imported into the Colony, if the collector or officer in charge of the station is satisfied that they are to be used as specimens for the purpose of soliciting orders for such articles on behalf of firms carrying on their business elsewhere than in Southern Nigeria.

(d) The Customs officers at the port at which the samples are imported must ascertain the amount of duty chargeable thereon, and the person applying for the permit must be required to deposit a sum sufficient to cover the duty payable on such articles if imported under ordinary conditions.

(e) As soon as the articles have been shipped for exportation the collector or officer in charge of the station may refund the amount deposited.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

There are no special regulations or taxes, and no licences are required.

No import duties are leviable except on spirits, wines, malt liquors and opium. Samples of spirits, wines and malt liquors if stored in a licensed warehouse are not subject to any duty, but are so subject if carried about and given away to intending purchasers. The samples of this class are as a rule contained in small bottles and the quantity in the aggregate is often so unimportant that no duty is charged. No regulations exist as to exportation of samples.

TRINIDAD.

No special regulations exist, nor are licences required, and no taxes are imposed.

Samples are liable to duty only if of commercial value, and are admitted free if the duty does not exceed one shilling. In other cases a deposit to cover the duty can be made, which is refunded provided the samples are exported within two months; this period may be extended, and arrangements may be made for shipping at a port other than that at which the samples were imported.

UGANDA.

No special regulations exist affecting commercial travellers. Only samples having a commercial value are subject to duty, three-quarters of which will be refunded on re-exportation within twelve months.

VIRGIN ISLANDS.

No special regulations and no taxes. Samples of no commercial value are admitted free. No rules in existence as to others.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

ABYSSINIA.

No special regulations exist concerning commercial travellers. For Customs purposes samples are considered as ordinary merchandise, there being no special rules dealing with them.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

Commercial travellers, whether selling goods in Argentina or merely showing samples and soliciting orders, must secure licences. The cost of these in the town of Buenos Aires and the national territories, as distinct from the other provinces of the Confederation, is $500 currency (about £43 13*s.* 6*d.*) per annum. In the principal provinces the following licence fees are levied: Jujuy, $200 (about £17 10*s.*) per annum; Salta, $1,680 (about £147) per annum. If the traveller only deals in one class of goods, $ 300 (about £50 8*s.*). Licences are also issued for the half year in Salta. Tucuman, $600 (£50 8*s.*) per annum; after June 30, $300 (£25 4*s.*); Cordoba, $200 (about £17 19*s.* 4*d.*) per half year; Santa Fé, $400 (about £34 18*s.*) per annum; Entre Rios, $500 (about £50 8*s.*) per annum: after June 30, $300 (£25 4*s.*); Corrientes, $330 (about £27 16*s.* 4*d.*) per annum; San Juan, $200 (about £17 10*s.*) per annum. Samples without commercial value are passed by the Argentine Customs without payment of import duty; samples of value are charged with import duty, which is refunded if they are re-exported within six months.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY

British commercial travellers in order to exercise their calling in Austria-Hungary should provide themselves with certificates of identity issued by British Chambers of Commerce or mayors of towns.

The regulations in force in AUSTRIA governing the operations of commercial travellers, whether native or foreign, strictly forbid the solicitation of orders from private individuals, and prescribe that the dealings of all travellers or agents must be confined to such firms or individuals as in the course of their business actually make use of the goods offered them, except in the cases noted below. The following is a list of the classes of goods for which orders may be sought by commercial travellers from all persons whether dealing in them or not: Machine plant of all kinds, including motors and their component parts; building material, including artificial stonework of all kinds, cork sheets, pasteboard for roofing, and artificial paving material; motor cars; engineer requisites for heating and lighting apparatus and for waterworks; dies; wooden blind rollers and Venetian blinds; fine or embroidered linen; sewing machines, typewriters, and cycles.

In the case of other classes of goods solicitation of orders from person not trading in them is only permitted provided the person giving the order expressly invites the soliciting party; such invitations must be previous and spontaneous orders in writing for certain strictly defined goods, and must be neither general in character nor of a self-repeating nature. The solicitation of orders for groceries and druggists' goods from persons not dealing in or making business use of these goods is unconditionally prohibited. It is understood that the preceding regulations are strictly enforced. Goods carried by commercial travellers must merely do duty as samples and must not be sold

In HUNGARY the solicitation of orders by commercial travellers is permitted in the following cases, viz.: (1) May solicit orders for the articles specified below from any person whether making use of the goods in manufacture or for resale, or not, viz.: literary and artistic products (N.B.—Enlarged or diminished photographs and reproductions of photographs on enamel are not now considered as articles of art); for articles of certified "home" industry; instruments and scientific apparatus; sewing machines; large agricultural machines (for threshing, sowing, mowing, also traction engines, steam-ploughs, steam-pumps, and mill-plant in general); in the case of orders given by small farmers for machines mentioned under this item, the legalisation of the order by local authorities is necessary; plant for the transmission of electric power, for lighting in general and for telephones; stamping seals. (2) May solicit orders for any class of goods from tradesmen who in the ordinary course of their business make use of the articles offered them either in manufacture or for resale. (3) May solicit orders from tradesmen for office and warehouse fittings and requisites (business books, shelves, safes, typewriting machines, scales &c.) for the use of the tradesman in his business. (4) May solicit orders from farmers who within the limits of their business carry on some branch of manufacture (mill, distillery, starch factory, manufacture of dairy produce &c.). Solicitations of these orders, however, are confined to such goods as can be employed or sold by the farmer within the limits of the said manufacture. (5) May receive orders from any person, and for any sort of goods, irrespective of their destination or employment, on express invitation in writing for certain strictly defined articles.

The solicitation of orders by commercial travellers in Hungary is prohibited in other cases than those specified above.

Samples:—An agreement between the British and Austro-Hungarian Governments signed on February 15th, 1897, provides that samples imported by British commercial travellers into Austria-Hungary are exempt from import duty, subject to the fulfilment of certain formalities to ensure their being re-exported or placed in bond.

The traveller must deposit the amount of duty which would be leviable, or give security therefor, and on the re-exportation of the samples—provided that this takes place within twelve months and that certain Customs formalities have been complied with—the duty deposited is refunded or the security discharged. Goods carried by commercial travellers as samples must not be sold.

Precious metals imported by commercial travellers solely for use as samples may be admitted without undergoing the process of marking (Punzierung), provided that security for the due exportation of the wares be deposited at the time of importation. Security must be given for the full market value of the samples in addition to the Customs duties, and the expenses of valuation and registration must be borne by the importer. The security is liable to confiscation in case the samples are not re-exported within the prescribed period of time. Commercial travellers' samples are exempted from statistical registration on passing the Customs House either on entrance or at exit.

BELGIUM.

Reciprocal treatment is accorded to British commercial travellers in Belgium, and consequently no restrictions are imposed on them, nor is any licence duty charged, on condition that they furnish proof of their nationality by means of documents of identity, passports, or other evidence. Travellers selling their samples are, however, liable to taxation as itinerant traders.

Samples are subject to the same customs treatment as the goods they represent, with the exception that free admission is granted for samples consisting of fragments too small to be possibly utilized otherwise. In contrary cases, as, for instance, in the case of patterns of tissues of a certain size, or of entire articles, such as shawls, handkerchiefs, ties, the cutting or laceration thereof so as to render them unfit for use, and to deprive them of any commercial value, shall be required, prior to permitting their free entry. Any sample of tissue, exceeding in length 30 centimetres, allowing full width of the cloth, shall be liable to duty.

Articles imported as samples, and not entitled to free entry, may temporarily be admitted duty free. Re-exportation or redeposit thereof in bond shall be insured by means of a transit certificate giving an exact description of the samples.

An agreement between the United Kingdom and Belgium with reference to the importation of samples by commercial travellers, provides that the marks, stamps or seals placed upon such samples by the Customs authorities of the United Kingdom at the time of exportation, and the officially attested list of such samples containing a full description thereof issued by the proper authority, are to be accepted by the Customs officials in Belgium as establishing their character as samples and exempting them from inspection on importation, except so far as may be necessary to establish that the samples produced are those enumerated in the list. The Customs authorities may, however, fix a supplementary mark to such samples in special cases where they may think this precaution necessary.

Commercial travellers' trunks containing samples, when less than 80 kilogs. in weight and ½ cubic metre in volume, may be carried in the luggage van of a passenger train, "but must pay the ordinary carriage rate." When weighing over 50 kilogs. the trunks must be furnished with broad straps on the upper part and two solid handles. When trunks exceed 80 kilogs. in weight or ½ cubic metre in volume they must be sent separately by goods train, being subject to the ordinary rate.

BELGIAN CONGO.

Firms wishing to carry on business here, and not having establishments on which the ordinary taxes are payable, are required to take out a licence and to pay a fee. The fee payable is 500 francs if the business of the firm includes the purchase or the sale of rubber, copal or ivory, or the sale of goods other than fresh goods on board vessels anchored in the Lower Congo; and 200 francs if the business of the firm is of any other nature. A special licence is granted on payment of the tax, which has to be produced to the authorities whenever required.

Samples of merchandise can be entered under the Customs regulations as merchandise intended for re-exportation, and as such are not subject to duty. A bond for the amount of duty which would be exacted if the samples were entered for consumption must, however be given.

BOLIVIA.

Commercial travellers in Bolivia are liable only to the payment of a municipal tax, the amount of which is fixed by the different municipalities in the Republic. The receipt for such payment serves as a licence to the traveller to conduct his business within the area of the Department of which the municipality which collects the tax is the capital. The tax varies, also, according to the class of goods in which the traveller deals, but in no case does it exceed the sum of 300 Bolivian dollars (Bolivian dollar = about 1*s.* 8*d.*). There are eleven Departments and Territories in Bolivia.

See also under Peru for information as to treatment of samples.

BRAZIL

There is no federal tax on commercial travellers as such. In some states, however, they are taxed, while in others they are required to take out a trader's licence if they act in that capacity. Most municipalities require the traveller to take out a hawker's licence if he can be considered within that category, but no state of the union requires such a licence. The following charges are levied:—

BAHIA (STATE).—100 milreis (£6 5*s.*), annual, upon payment of which a licence is granted. If, however, a traveller leaves the country and returns, a fresh licence is required.

MARANHAM (STATE).—250 milreis (£15 12*s.* 6*d.*), annual.

(Municipal) Maranham: 100 milreis (£6 5*s.*), annual.

MINAS GERAES (STATE).—55 milreis (£3 8*s.* 6*d.*), annual. If a trader's licence is taken out, both state and municipal taxes are levied; if, however, a hawker's licence is taken out, there is only a municipal charge. At Oliveira, for instance, a hawker's licence costs 5 00 milreis (£31 5*s.*).

(Municipal) Lavras: 300 milreis (£18 15*s.*), if travellers do business with private individuals.

PARÁ (STATE).—300 milreis (£18 15*s.*), annual. Rarely exacted.

(Municipal) Pará: 365 milreis (£22 15*s.*) each visit. If travellers sell goods, a trader's or hawker's licence is necessary.

PERNAMBUCO (STATE).—None.

(Municipal) Fortaleza: 53 milreis (£3 5*s.* 11*d.*).

RIO DE JANEIRO (STATE).—None on commercial travellers; if however, they sell the samples or goods they carry, they must take out (a) a trader's licence (in this case a state and a municipal tax varying in amount are charged); (b) a hawker's licence (in this case the tax is only municipal).

Samples of little or no marketable value are admitted duty free after due verification by an employé appointed by the Inspectorate. The following are considered samples of little or no value:—Fragments or part of any product or merchandise in such quantity only as is absolutely necessary to afford a proper appreciation of its nature, species or quality, and the duties on which would not exceed one milreis (1*s.* 4*d.*) per package. Complete objects, but such as are already rendered useless and unfitted for the purpose for which they are intended, are also considered as of no value; no merchandise may, however, at the time of its examination or verification, be rendered useless with the object of freeing it from the import taxes.

Samples of value are granted temporary importation free of Customs duty under the terms of Article 2, paragraph 27, of the Preliminary Tariff Regulations, on condition that the commercial traveller guarantees the Customs and other dues leviable by signing a bond of responsibility with a proper surety (a bank or registered merchant) binding himself to re-export the goods within the period allowed by the Inspector; this period may be prolonged. The bond of responsibility, within the period of one year (the maximum period), is only annulled on production of documentary evidence of the destination of the goods; the presentation of such documents after the fixed period entails the imposition of a fine of from 10 to 50 per cent. of the duties, while failure to produce the documents on the expiration of the maximum period (one year) entails the payment of the proper taxes. The guarantee is equivalent to the sum of the taxes and other Customs dues.

If the above regulations are not complied with, the commercial traveller must "nationalise" the samples of value by payment of the various dues leviable in accordance with the tariff and laws in force.

RIO GRANDE DO SUL (STATE).—150 milreis (£9 7s. 6d.) for cities; 100 milreis (£6 5s.) for towns; 80 milreis (£5) for other places. (Municipal) Porto Alegre: 200 milreis (£12 10s.); Pelotas, 200 milreis (£12 10s); Rio Grande, none; Bagé, 800 milreis (£50); Uruguayana, 300 milreis (£18 15s.); São Borga, 60 milreis (£3 15s.); São Gabriel, 200 milreis (£12 10s.).

SÃO PAULO (STATE).—None.

In practice, a power of attorney is almost universally necessary for a traveller receiving payment for sales. It must be registered before a notary public, who will furnish copies upon payment of the usual fees.

Commercial travellers entering Brazil have to pay import duties on samples they bring with them, which is refunded on petition to the Inspector of Customs when the goods are exported from the port of import; in cases, however, where such duties do not exceed one milreis per package, no charge is made. There is no time limit for the re-exportation of samples to obtain the refund of duty.

BULGARIA.

Commercial travellers must be provided with legitimation certificates; in the case of British commercial travellers, the commercial agreement between Great Britain and Bulgaria of December 9, 1905, provides that the legitimation certificates may be issued in a prescribed form by Chambers of Commerce in the United Kingdom.

Commercial travellers must also be provided with a special licence. The application for this licence must contain (a) a full description of the class of goods sold; (b) the name of the firm represented; (c) the period for which the licence is required. The application must, moreover, be accompanied by (1) a certificate of identity of the commercial traveller, which must be duly legalised and translated into Bulgarian; (2) a power of attorney delivered by the firm represented. This power of attorney must clearly define the rights given to the commercial traveller, and must be translated into Bulgarian and duly legalised. The licences are issued by the Ministry of Commerce and are delivered to commercial travellers by the Customs House of the first Bulgarian town entered. The fees for these licences are of three classes, determined according to the nature of the business, by the heads of the Customs House, as follows:—For one year, licences of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd class cost respectively 150 francs, 100 francs and 50 francs. If more than one firm is represented there is an extra charge of 100 francs (1st class), 75 francs (2nd class), and 50 francs (3rd class). For six months, the corresponding licences cost 100 francs, 75 francs and 35 francs respectively, while the surcharges for representing more than one firm during that period are reduced to 50 francs, to 25 francs, and to 25 francs according to the different classes. These licences allow the traveller to exercise his calling in any part of the country, and no others are required by provincial or municipal authorities.

No income tax is leviable in respect of sales effected.

Travellers are strictly forbidden to sell the samples or goods they carry.

Samples of no commercial value are not liable to duty. With regard to samples of commercial value, the commercial traveller on entering Bulgaria is bound to present at the Customs House an exact inventory of the samples he has with him, fixing at the same time the period of their re-exportation. These samples are sealed and delivered to the commercial traveller on payment of a deposit equal to the amount of duty leviable; the deposit is returned to the importer if the samples are re-exported within a period of one year. If the samples are re-exported through another Customs House than that of entry, the deposit is returned after a full indentification of the samples. For this purpose commercial travellers should be provided with a duly legalised copy of the inventory of the samples imported, delivered by the Customs House through which the importation of the samples into Bulgaria was effected.

CHILE.

Commercial travellers are permitted to exercise their calling freely in all parts of Chile without having to obtain permits from administrative authorities or the police, or safe-conducts (passports).

As regards samples the Superintendent of Customs in Chile was authorised by a decree, dated April 19th, 1898, to permit the despatch for private warehouses of the samples with which the agents of commercial houses are travelling, provided that they are not whole pieces of stuff or complete sets of objects which would divest them of their character as samples.

In virtue of this exemption, travelling salesmen may introduce their samples of foreign merchandise into any port of the Republic without paying in ready money the ordinary import duties, and have a term of six months in which to pay them if the samples which they bring are designed for consumption in the country. If they re-ship the samples to a foreign country, the I.O.U. (pagaré) which they have signed for the value of those duties is cancelled without any charge.

CHINA.

Neither the Chinese Government nor the Imperial Maritime Customs have any regulations affecting commercial travellers as a special class. In entering the country and travelling therein they are subject to the ordinary Governmental and Customs restrictions governing all foreign travellers, and are not required to pay special licence fees or taxes.

As to samples, the Inspectorate-General of Customs of China states that the rule is to admit samples and specimens of goods in reasonable quantities and not for sale free of duty. This rule is generally read as liberally as the circumstances permit, but that a distinction is made in practice between a "sample" and a "specimen," meaning by the latter samples having an intrinsic value of their own. For example, a few yards of various kinds of cloth would be admitted free as "samples," but a locomotive or a case of watches would be considered "specimens" and means taken to secure the duties on them in case of their sale for actual use. The procedure in the latter case is to require the payment of duty, while the traveller makes a declaration that the goods are to be re-exported. When the re-exportation takes place a drawback certificate is issued by the Customs authorities for the amount of duty paid, which can be cashed at the Customs bank or used at par in future payments to the Customs House.

Circulars and price lists are admitted duty free if intended for free distribution.

COLOMBIA.

Commercial travellers are subject to the payment of the ordinary taxes according to the classes of commercial operations in which they are engaged. In the following municipalities and district they are furthermore subject to local dues as follows:—

CALI (municipality).—$30 gold (£6) available for 120 days. After that $5 (£1) per month, payable in advance.

CARTAGENA (municipality).—$10 (£2) for the period during which they remain.

MANIZALES (municipality).—For exhibition of samples, native or foreign, $10 (£2) per month.

MEDELLIN.—They must take out a patent before beginning to trade, whether they carry samples or not. The minimum charge for a patent is 4,000 pesos currency (about £8) for the first four months. Should their stay exceed that period they will then be classified by the municipal authorities as the latter think fit.

SANTA MARTA (district).—$5 (£1) per month.

Catalogues and samples of no value are admitted free of duty. Foreign commercial travellers are allowed to export their samples at ports other than the port of entry if they so desire. On the importation of samples (up to a maximum of 1,000 kilograms) they are to enter into a bond to pay the amount of the duty leviable thereon if they are not exported within a period of 12 months. Should the goods not be exported within that period a tax of 2 per cent. on the leviable duty must be paid monthly for every extra month they remain in the country. The Customs documents showing the duties leviable must be preserved, and presented to the Customs authorities at the port chosen for exportation; who, after checking the weight and verifying the identity of the samples, will cancel the bond entered into, provided the period of one year is not exceeded.

COREA.

There are no laws or regulations in force in Corea governing the movements of commercial travellers, and no tax is levied on sales effected by them.

Samples in reasonable quantities, whether of commercial value or not, are duty free.

The interpretation of the term "reasonable quantities" is left to the discretion of the individual commissioners of Customs at the various open ports of the country, and any undue amount pays duty as ordinary merchandise. If goods on which duty has been levied are re-exported within thirteen months—preferably, but not absolutely necessarily through the same Customs office as that of importation—the duty paid on them will be refunded.

COSTA RICA.

As far as the whole republic of Costa Rica is concerned, no licences are required, nor are there any special regulations affecting commercial travellers. In the municipalities of San José, Limon and Puntarenas, there are municipal taxes of 100, 50 and 15 colones respectively (1 colon=23·97d.), and on payment of this tax an official receipt is given which has to be produced on demand. In practice, however, these taxes are only enforced occasionally, while in San José payment appears to be enforced only when a showroom is hired, and rarely even then. There are no restrictions as regards to the sale of samples, and no income tax is levied on the profits of such sales.

Samples, whether of commercial value or not, are liable to a duty of 2 cents currency per kilogramme, wharfage tax of 1 cent, and theatre tax of ½ cent per kilog., with a consular tax of 2 per cent. of the value of the import duty, or in all 3·52 cents. per kilog. (·37d. per lb.) charged on the gross weight of the packages. On re-exportation from any port, within 90 days, the traveller is entitled to a refund of the actual duty on the goods (as distinct from the wharfage and other taxes).

CUBA.

Commercial travellers are treated in the same manner as ordinary travellers, and at present are not required to pay a licence fee in any of the provinces.

The invoice of samples, which should include the gross and net weight of the package and its items and an exact description of the materials of which the goods are made, must be vised by a Cuban consular officer before leaving the country of departure. Samples of a high value, such as gold, silver, tortoiseshell, should not be attached to cards.

Samples.—The following sections of the Customs Tariff provide for the free admission of certain samples:—

§ 326. Samples of felt, wall paper and tissues when they comply with the following conditions:

(a) When they do not exceed 40 centimetres in length, measured in the warp or length of the piece, even when such samples have the entire width of the piece. The width shall, for tissues, be determined by the list, and for felts and wall paper by the narrow border which has not passed through the press.

(b) Samples not having these indications shall only be admitted free of duty when they do not exceed 40 centimetres in any dimension.

(c) In order to avoid abuse, the samples declared for free entry must have cuts at every 20 centimetres of their width, so as to render them unfit for any other purpose.

§ 327. Samples of trimmings in small pieces of no commercial value or possible application.

In the case of other samples only a partial remission of the duty is provided for in the following note to section 327 of the tariff:—

NOTE.—No other samples than those provided for in §326 and §327 are admitted free of duty; provided that ordinary and usual commercial samples, imported by bona fide commercial travellers in their baggage, after examination and identification by the Customs House, upon re-exportation within three months after the date of their importation, are entitled to a refund of 75 per cent. of the duties paid thereon, if upon presentation at the Customs House for re-exportation said samples shall be positively recognized and identified as being those upon which duty has been paid, and provided further that the appraised value of said samples shall not exceed $500.

DENMARK.

Commercial travellers must take out a licence costing 160 kroner, or about £9. In the case of travellers representing more than one firm the above amount has to be paid for the first firm and half that sum for each of the others. This tax is paid to the Customs on the arrival of the traveller in Denmark, and the licence is available for one year from the date of issue. No licence is issued for a shorter period.

When making application for a licence travellers must produce a certificate showing that they are duly authorised to act on behalf of the firm they represent. In the case of a British commercial traveller such certificate should take the form of a declaration made before a notary public either by the traveller himself or by the house or firm he represents. If the traveller is unable to produce this certificate he must obtain for 64 kroner (about £3 11s.) a temporary licence. This sum is forfeited if a certificate is not exhibited within four weeks.

Commercial samples are subject to import duty according to the tariff.

If they are re-exported within four months and proof furnished as to their identity, the duty is returned.

FAROE ISLANDS.—Commercial travellers must obtain from the Sheriff at Thorshavn a certificate, which is valid for one year only from the date of issue. For such certificate a payment of 25 kr. (£1 7s. 9d.) must be made if the commercial traveller represents only a single firm; if he represents several firms he must pay an extra 15 kr. (16s. 8d.) for each of those firms.

Fines varying from 10 kr. (11s. 1½d.) to 40 kr. (£2 4s. 5d.) for the first offence, increasing up to a maximum of 120 kr. (£6 13s. 4d.) for the third and subsequent offences, are to be imposed for transgressions.

ICELAND.—Under the law of November 22nd, 1907, foreign commercial travellers must take out a licence in their own name. The licence fee is 200 kroner if the traveller represents but one firm and 50 kroner additional for each additional firm. The licence is good for one year from the date of issue.

ECUADOR.

Commercial travellers must take out a licence, costing 100 sucres (£10), before being allowed to sell their wares in the Republic. Any infringement is punishable by a fine equal to double the amount of the licence.

EGYPT.

There are no regulations governing the admission of commercial travellers or the practice of their profession. The duty on samples of value has to be paid in cash or be secured by a bond which is cancelled on the re-exportation of the samples within one year.

Commercial catalogues and advertising matter imported definitely into the country are dutiable, but in practice duty is always collected on a nominal value.

FRANCE.

Article 24 of the law of July 15, 1880, which is still in force, stipulates that commercial travellers for foreign nations shall be treated as regards licences on the same basis as French commercial travellers are treated by these same nations. As French commercial travellers are exempt from any special regulations in Great Britain, British commercial travellers are accordingly exempted in France.

Agents of British firms resident and trading in France are subject to the same taxation with regard to licences as Frenchmen.

No regulations are imposed as regards the representation by a traveller of more than one firm. A traveller representing several firms, entirely on commission, would, however, pay "patente," or trading licence, as "représentant de commerce." Travellers selling the actual goods they carry are liable to pay "patente" as "marchands forains," but in practice this is seldom enforced.

All foreigners resident in France are required to register themselves at the Prefecture of Police in Paris, or at a Mairie in the Departments, and receive in return a certificate, for which a fee of 2fr. 50c. is charged.

Samples.—In accordance with treaty arrangements, samples of commercial value from the United Kingdom can be temporarily admitted into France on deposit of duty, to be reimbursed on re-exportation within twelve months through the Customs House of entry or any other Custom House. Marks affixed to British samples and lists of the same drawn up by his Majesty's Customs are accepted as proof of identity. Commercial travellers must present a carte de legitimation, issued by their local Chamber of Commerce, when depositing duty the refund of which is to be subsequently claimed in respect of imported samples of commercial value.

MADAGASCAR.—Commercial travellers are taxed at the rate of 13s. 4d. for every month or part of a month they stay in the island. The tax is to be paid on landing and a traveller's licence obtained from the local Administrator.

FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA.—Commercial travellers must be provided with a "patente" of the 3rd class, the cost of which is 250 francs.

INDO-CHINA.—No special regulations affecting commercial travellers.

OTHER COLONIES.—Generally the same as in France.

GERMANY.

British commercial travellers must, in order to carry on operations in Germany, obtain a licence from the German authorities. Such licences are available for one year throughout the German Empire; they cost 1 mark each, and are granted subject to the payment of the taxes of each State, which differ in the various federated countries. They are issued in Berlin by the chief of police; in other parts of Prussia by the "Regierungs Präsidenten," and in all other parts of the Empire by the Police or Municipal authorities. Commercial travellers soliciting orders may only carry samples or patterns, and not the actual goods they offer.

Samples of goods which cannot be used for other purposes may be imported duty free into Germany. If doubt exists as to their utility for other purposes, the importer is allowed to render them unfit for use under official control. Samples of tobacco, food-stuffs and the like are excluded from free importation as samples.

By the treaty arrangement of 1908 the German Customs have agreed to accept the marks on the samples, and the lists drawn up by His Majesty's Customs as establishing their nature as samples.

GERMAN EAST AFRICA.

No special regulations.

Commercial travellers, although they are not required to take out a licence, must obtain a hawker's licence (Gewerbeschein) if they sell the samples or goods which they carry. This licence, the cost of which varies in proportion to the sales effected, is obtainable at the office of any district commissioner (Bezirksamt), and a licence once taken out entitles the traveller to exercise his calling in any part of the country.

The tax levied on business undertakings, which would appear to include sales effected by commercial travellers, amounts to 4 per cent. of the net yearly income, or, if that cannot be ascertained, 1½ per cent. of the yearly turnover. If no net income has been produced, undertakings having a capital of 40,000 rupees or over are liable to a yearly contribution of 1 per mille, such contribution not to exceed 400 rupees.

Samples.—Samples of no commercial value are free, but if of commercial value are liable to duty, which may be deposited in view of re-exportation, which must take place within 12 months, and may be made from any one of the three following ports:—Dar-es-Salaam, Tanga and Kilwa.

In the event of a commercial traveller engaging a large caravan, he would require a special licence, and a deposit demanded for each bearer engaged. The amount of such deposit depends upon the circumstances.

GERMAN SOUTH-WEST AFRICA.

Commercial travellers visiting the country on behalf of British firms not established in German South-West Africa must obtain a certificate of identity, for which a charge of 10 marks is made, and must pay a tax of 250 marks. The certificate is valid for one year; the tax is only valid for three months, so that the traveller must pay 250 marks for every three he remains in the country.

SAMOA (GERMAN).

Commercial travellers receiving a salary of not less than 300 marks per month are required to pay a licence of 25 marks, and those receiving a salary of less than 300 marks pay 12 marks per annum.

For the display of samples in sample room an additional charge of 50 marks is made.

Samples of commercial value are dutiable, but if the stay does not exceed one month, they are admitted free on condition that they are re-exported within that period. All goods sold are dutiable at 10 per cent. ad valorem excepting spirits, tobacco, cigars, sporting arms and gunpowder, which are subject to specific duties.

GREECE.

Commercial travellers are not required to go through any formalities in order to be able legally to exercise their calling in Greece, nor are they required to take out any licence, provided they come and go merely as bearers of samples and receivers of orders. Agents of British firms resident in Greece are, however, required to take out trade licences.

Samples without commercial value are exempt from import duty. But when they have a value, as capable of being utilised in commerce in whole or in part, their delivery from the Customs House shall be permitted under conditions of transit, after the identity of each sample has been assured by an additional mark affixed by the Customs authority, and satisfactory security has been given for the payment of the import duty in the event of their not having been exported from the kingdom within twelve months in the same condition, whether from the same port, or from another port where importation is allowed.

GUATEMALA.

No laws or regulations.

No licence is required by travellers to sell their goods, unless they deal in wine, spirits or tobacco, when they must take out the ordinary licences required of merchants who sell such articles.

Samples are subject to payment of duty, but if the traveller declares his intention to re-export them, he may furnish a deposit or bond for the amount of duty, which is cancelled upon exportation. There is no defined time limit for re-exportation of samples admitted on deposit. Catalogues are nominally liable to the duties imposed on printed matter, but this regulation is not usually enforced.

HAYTI.

No laws relative to commercial travellers, but according to the tariff for professions or industries annexed to the law of August 3, 1900, a commercial traveller pays a "patent" of $100 (100 gourdes) per annum. By virtue of article 63 of the law of August 11, 1903, on the withdrawal of the paper money he also pays $50 for a licence tax (to wit, one half of the fee for a patent). A foreign commercial traveller selling his samples is reckoned as engaging in trade, and consequently is subject to the laws applicable in that case. Samples of no value are admitted free of duty. By permission of the Custom House authorities import duties may be deposited in view of re-exportation from the port of importation, in the case of samples having a commercial value.

HONDURAS.

No laws or regulations regarding commercial travellers, or as to entrance of their samples. The Customs tariff states that samples under 25lbs weight, whether of commercial value or not, are free of duty, but ordinary duties must be paid on higher weights. There are no special arrangements whereby duty may be deposited or guaranteed in view of re-exportation, but such a deposit may be made if the Customs authorities care to permit it. The deposit will be returned on the re-exportation of the goods from any port in the Republic, within whatever period the Customs authorities may stipulate in each particular case.

Travellers who incidentally sell samples and goods are not subject to any special licence, but in case they take up the profession of hawkers, traders &c. they are subject to a permit granted to any respectable individual on payment of 25 dollars silver (about £2).

ITALY.

In practice no certificates of identity or licences are required from British commercial travellers, the Italian Government enforcing the production of certificates only in the case of countries which have adopted restrictive measures against Italian commercial travellers.

Samples of no commercial value intended to represent articles of which they form part are exempt from import duty. This exemption embraces also samples of paper and tapestry of sufficient size to show the whole pattern, as well as samples of porcelain, tissues, and other goods, comprising various patterns of one article, provided that the importer consents to render the same unfit for use.

JAPAN.

No special legislation affecting commercial travellers exists in Japan, but in some cases, depending on the goods dealt in, a licence, the price of which also depends on the nature of the business, would be necessary. Travellers selling goods or samples would need such a licence, and would also have to obtain permission to do business.

In the case of articles temporarily imported as samples, commercial travellers must deposit a sum of money equal to the duty, which will be refunded on exportation within six months.

LIBERIA.

All commercial travellers are treated as commission agents, and before they may exhibit their wares or samples or take orders for goods they must take out a licence, subject to a fee of £5 4s. 2d. per annum. If selling samples, travellers require a licence costing £5 4s. 2d. for wholesale, and £2 12s. 1d. for retail business.

Samples of no commercial value are admitted free of duty. Samples of value are subject to the payment of regular duties, but can, however, be carried free of charge from one port to another under a duty-paid "transire." Probably arrangements could be made for a return of the duty upon re-exportation, but there are no special regulations on the subject.

MEXICO.

The rates of the taxes payable vary considerably in the different states of Mexico, and in many cases municipal taxes are levied in addition to the State taxes. In many cases it is to be observed that the amount of the tax to be paid rests, subject to appeal to a higher official, on the decision of the local official whose duty it is to assess the tax. A further charge of 20 to 25 per cent. of the taxes leviable in some of the various States is made for the Federal revenue.

The following samples of merchandise are admitted free of duty: Those having no commercial value; pieces of textiles not exceeding 20 centimetres (7·9 inches) in length, although having the full width of the cloth, and all parts of articles which cannot be sold: samples consisting of entire articles, such as manufactures of any material, dry goods, hardware, handkerchiefs, mufflers, socks, shirts &c., provided they are cut or perforated to destroy their commercial value; samples of wines, brandies, or liquors contained in receptacles having a capacity of not more than 40 centilitres (0.7 of a pint), the weight of the liquid not exceeding 400 grams (0.88 pound), and provided the total net weight, or the total volume of the samples sent by one party to one consignee does not exceed 5 kilograms (11 pounds) or 5 litres (4.4 quarts), respectively. In all other cases samples of dutiable goods must pay the regular duty.

"When a collection of samples of articles of haberdashery or ironmongery contains complete goods coming under distinct classifications of the tariff, and the weight of each class of goods cannot be determined, the duty imposed on the entire collection of samples shall be at the highest rate applicable to any one article in the collection." (General Customs Regulations, Article 216.)

Catalogues or advertisements, in the form of pamphlets, if unbound, are admitted free. If bound they are classified with "books and music" and pay duty at the rate of 5 centavos per kilog. (5s. 2¼d. per cwt.). Advertisements of all kinds on paper or cardboard, if unframed, pay a duty of 22 cents. per legal kilog. (£1 2s. 10d. per cwt.).

If a commercial traveller actually sells and delivers goods he has to pay the interior stamp tax of ½ per cent. on all sales. This and like taxes, being imposed under the budget or revenue laws of the several states, are liable to periodical changes.

The duty on samples need not be paid in cash if the commercial traveller declares his intention to the Customs officers to re-export the samples upon his departure. In the latter case he is required to furnish a deposit or a bond for the amount of the duty, and is furnished with a certificate describing in detail the articles imported, and the duty on each article, as well as the period within which the samples must be re-exported. The re-exportation may take place through any Custom House in the country upon the presentation of the above certificate, when the deposit will be returned or the bond cancelled upon the identification of the samples. Commercial travellers are usually allowed six months for re exporting their samples, but the period may be prolonged up to two years upon application to the director of Customs. The certificate issued by the Custom House through which the samples are imported should always be carried by the traveller and presented upon demand of the various officials, and takes the place of consular invoices when travelling on foreign ships between ports of the Republic.

AGUASCALIENTES.—There would appear to be no special regulations affecting foreign commercial travellers in this State, but any commercial traveller who visits a business firm in the Municipality of Aguascalientes, the capital of the State, with a view to sell merchandise must pay a municipal tax varying from $50 to $100 (£5 to £10), whether the bargain is actually concluded or not. Commercial travellers have to report themselves and pay the tax immediately on their arrival.

CAMPECHE.—No information forthcoming.

CHIAPAS.—The tax is assessed by the collector of Taxes according to his judgment within the limits laid down by law, viz., from $10 to $100 per month

CHIHUAHUA.—Commercial travellers as such are not subject to any tax or licence for the pursuit of their calling. If they sell their goods they are considered "merchants," and pay a tax of 1½% on sales.

COAHUILA.—There is no State tax, but varying taxes are levied on commercial travellers in all the municipalities in the State.

COLIMA.—There would appear to be no State or Municipal regulations in force at present affecting foreign commercial travellers.

DURANGO.—Commercial travellers pay a licence fee of $10 a month. Failure to obtain a licence is punishable by a fine of $50 in addition to the amount of the tax.

GUANAJUATO.—Commercial travellers not selling direct to customers, but dealing only with legally established firms or tradespeople, are not subject to tax or duty of any description. Others are liable to duty and must pay for a licence in every municipality in which they transact business. The charge for this licence, which is valid for 30 days, is fixed by the president of the Municipal Council, and varies from $50 to $150.

GUERRERO.—No State taxes or regulations exist, but the municipalities have the right to levy a small tax on commercial travellers, which takes the form of a licence costing from $5 to $10 and valid for 30 days.

HIDALGO.—Licence varies from $1 to $20 per month, the tax being assessed by the tax collector of the district, subject to appeal to the nearest senior fiscal officer. The municipality of Pachuca levies a special tax and has separate regulations in force.

JALISCO.—No special regulations are in force, but commercial travellers must pay a revenue tax on sales amounting to ½% on the value of the goods sold if over $20 (£2), when they personally deliver the goods to their customers, and the invoices are made out in the State. Travellers who do business with the general public and not with merchants are obliged to pay the tax on every individual transaction.

MAZATLAN.—Commercial travellers will be expected to appear before the authorities and declare concerning the articles they intend offering for sale, and pay whatever tax is imposed.

STATE OF MEXICO.—No tax is levied on travellers dealing with established firms, but a Government commission of 6 per cent. is charged on transactions made with private parties. The penalty for attempted evasion of this charge varies from $10 to $100 for every sale effected. Commercial travellers must, however, present to the State Treasury credentials from the firms represented and obtain a licence to sell goods. Commercial travellers who have not obtained this licence are liable to a fine of from $25 to $100.

MICHOACAN.—A State tax of from $5 to $20 monthly is imposed, according to the district and the importance of the sales effected. Travellers are further subject to municipal taxes varying locally from $15 to $100, and to a local stamp tax of 1% on all sales. If dealing in the following articles they are exempt from all taxation: Scientific instruments, books and publications of all kinds, live stock for improving the breed of cattle, plants and seeds, and building materials.

MORELOS.—No tax is levied, but a small stamp tax has to be paid in the event of a sale of goods.

NUEVO LEON.—Commercial travellers pay a monthly tax of $10 to $50 in Monterey, of from $5 to $20 in Linares, Dr. Arroyo, Lampazos, Montemorelos and Cadereita Jimenez, and of from $2 to $10 in the smaller towns of the State. In case the sales in the city of Monterey exceed the amount of $4,000, or $3,000 in any of the cities of the second class, or $2,000 in any other town of the State, an additional tax of three-fourths per cent. on the amount of the sales has to be paid.

OAXACA.—A new licence law was issued on May 20th, 1913, prescribing licence taxes for commercial travellers, banks, stores, factories, and other establishments. The licence tax provided for travelling salesmen is from 5 to 300 pesos for a period of not exceeding one month, the exact amount to be fixed in accordance with the importance of the business represented.

PUEBLA.—The tax on commercial travellers visiting this State is assessed at from $5 to $250. This licence, which is valid for one month, is in every case a personal one, and is not valid outside the place in which it is issued.

QUERETARO.—Commercial travellers dealing with merchants established in their line of business are exempt from taxes. Only persons selling goods direct to customers must pay a State tax of 1 per cent. on all sales over $20 (£2), and 3 per cent. on retail sales.

Commercial travellers must report upon arrival to the "Empleado Superior de Rentas" (tax collector) of the municipality, in order to be able to transact business unmolested.

SAN LUIS POTOSI.—Commercial travellers pay a monthly tax of from $5 to $25 according to the class of trade in which they are engaged.

SINALOA.—No information forthcoming.

SONORA.—The State tax varies from $50 to $150 per month, and is payable in each town in the State that commercial travellers may visit. There is further a municipal tax in the various municipalities.

TABASCO.—No tax is levied unless samples are exposed for sale, when a monthly pedlar's tax is payable to the municipality and the State.

TAMAULIPAS.—A State tax varying from $5 to $15 per month.

TLAXCALA.—No tax is levied on commercial travellers.

VERA CRUZ.—Itinerant traders and commercial travellers in this State must obtain licences at the following rates per month:—General merchandise, either domestic or foreign, $150.00 (maximum); jewellery and allied trades, $200.00 (maximum); live stock of all kinds, $25.00 (maximum). In all three cases the minimum monthly assessment is fixed at 10 centavos (2d.). Itinerant traders and commercial travellers before commencing to exercise their calling must make application for a licence at the office of the State Revenue Department, declaring the particular branch of business to which they propose to devote themselves, or if there is no such special officer, to the local agent nominated for the purpose. The traveller has the right of appeal to the head of the State to have the amount of his licence reduced if he considers the Revenue officer to have fixed too heavy an impost, but must pay the full amount pending the appeal. Payment must be bi-monthly and in advance, unless the applicant declares his intention of remaining in the State but one month, in which case the amount payable is in accordance with the dues corresponding to that period. The chief of a Revenue Office may make modifications in the amount of the licence fee fixed by Treasury or Revenue agents, if he thinks fit, should the licensee desire to do business in the chief town of a canton; the same right of appeal to the head of the State exists in this case. In order to assist itinerant traders and commercial travellers in complying with the foregoing rules, tax collectors and Treasury agents collect at one and the same time the State and Municipal dues, and the details of these amounts figure on the licence given to a traveller. When a licence has been thus duly issued, travellers are entitled to travel without hindrance in all parts of the State, on the production of their licence, and no one is authorised to make a further collection either for monthly or bi-monthly dues. Failure to take out a licence in the manner set forth above is punishable. Itinerant traders and commercial travellers are bound to produce their licence on demand of the police or State or Municipal authorities.

YUCATAN.—Commercial travellers are not subject to the payment of any licence tax unless they hawk their goods or expose them for sale in the market place, when they are subject to a tax varying from $5 to $15. If they have a fixed business establishment in the State they are liable to the taxes imposed upon other merchants.

ZACATECAS.—Commercial travellers are exempt from the payment of any licence tax unless they sell their goods, when they are subject to a tax varying from 5 centavos to $300.

FEDERAL DISTRICT OF MEXICO AND FEDERAL TERRITORIES.

The following regulations apply to commercial travellers visiting the Federal District (City of Mexico) and the territories of Lower California, Tepic and Quintana Roo: Commercial travellers are taxed at a maximum monthly rate of $30 (£3) and a minimum rate of $5 (10s.). This rate is charged per month, or fraction of a month. The commercial traveller is required to present within eight days of his arrival in the Federal district a statement of his business, information concerning his principals, the importance of their trade &c. and will thereupon be assessed within the limits above-mentioned, and given a licence to pursue his calling unmolested. This licence further gives him the right to sell the goods or samples he has brought with him.

MONTENEGRO.

Commercial travellers are subject to no special regulations, licences or taxes; they are, however, advised to have a certificate showing the nature of their employment. If not known in the country, they must produce a power of attorney.

Samples of no commercial value are admitted free of duty. For samples of value duty must be deposited with the first Custom House through which the country is entered. The duty paid on samples not sold is refunded to the traveller on re-exportation at any time.

MOROCCO.

There are no laws or regulations.

Samples.—On importation a deposit must be made of the amount of the duty leviable thereon, and this will be claimed for the Moroccan Treasury if the articles are not re-exported within six months. Importers are not obliged to re-export the identical articles originally imported, the temporary admission accounts being dischargeable by the re-exportation of articles equivalent in number or quantity, quality and capacity to those imported. Re-exportation must take place through the Customs House where the entry was made.

NETHERLANDS.

No licences, strictly speaking, are required in the Netherlands by foreign commercial travellers.

The only direct tax to which foreign commercial travellers in the Netherlands are liable is that on their professional income, provided they are not domiciled in the country. The amount of the tax for such persons is fixed at 15 fl. (£1 5s.) a year. They are legally bound to communicate in writing their name, domicile and profession to the authorities of the Municipality in which they happen to be, immediately after the commencement of the financial year, which extends from the 1st May to the 30th April.

As a proof of their compliance with this formality, they are furnished with a certificate, free of charge, signed by the Burgomaster, or his deputy, to which they are obliged to affix their signature. This certificate must be produced, on the demand of the officials of Direct Taxation, under a penalty of 25 fl. (£2 1s. 8d.) The head of the Municipality will only grant the certificate on presentation of a declaration of the Collector of Direct Taxes to the effect that the tax has been paid, or that he has received security for the amount.

Samples imported by commercial travellers may be granted a temporary exemption from import duties on the production of the above-mentioned certificate. A pass is given for these samples on the declaration of the importer, after security has been furnished, and the articles in question have had a leaden or wax seal affixed to them by the Customs authorities. These latter are, however, authorised to omit the affixing of such seals or other marks of identity if the samples are provided with leaden or wax seals or marks of the Customs of the country of origin, unless the affixing of further marks be thought necessary for purposes of identification. The sum given as security is refunded on the export of the samples, provided the seals which have been affixed to them have remained intact, and that the exportation takes place within the period mentioned in the pass, and which must not exceed a year from the date of importation. The non-observance of these formalities entails the loss of the above privileges. Samples of no value may be admitted without duty. Articles of gold and silver which are brought in as samples are subject to special provisions and a quarter of their value must be paid as security at the port of entry.

A commercial traveller, while not obliged to convey his samples personally on importing them into the Netherlands, is bound to present them in person for examination and sealing.

CURAÇAO.—There are no special provisions for commercial travellers in Curaçao. The goods which travellers convey with them for the purpose of obtaining orders (samples) are exempt from import duties, as they generally are of little or no value; and the goods which are offered for sale by the travellers remain under the control of the Customs officers. Import and Excise duties must be paid on the goods as soon as they are sold.

EAST INDIES.—All foreigners entering the Dutch East Indies must report themselves within three days after their arrival to the Chief of the Local Administration, and give information as to the place and object of their stay. After they have reported themselves, they receive at their request a certificate of admission, which gives them the right to dwell for six months in all ports open to general trade, as well as in the places mentioned in the certificate. The period of six months may be extended on request. Permits for journeys must also be obtained from the Government. Commercial travellers in the Dutch East Indies have, as such, to pay a tax of 2 per cent. on their income.

Small patterns of textiles, as well as samples without commercial value, are admitted duty free without further formalities, as samples of no value. For samples of value, such as gold and silver articles, watches &c. a deposit according to their value must be made with the Customs; in such cases a description of the signs and marks in the samples is also taken, in order to prove their identity on re-export. The deposit is returned before the samples are re-exported; if any are retained, the amount of the deposit corresponding to the value of the samples retained is kept back. Samples must be re-exported from the port of original entry.

SURINAM.—No licence has to be taken out by commercial travellers, except in the case of those dealing in spirits, when the tax for traders in spirits must be paid.

In the case of commercial travellers bringing with them samples other than those of no commercial value, the goods are inspected by the Customs officials, and security has to be given for the payment of import duties. On exportation the goods are again officially inspected, and import duty has to be paid for any that have been sold, and the security is returned. There is no limit fixed to the time that samples may be kept before they are exported.

NICARAGUA.

There are no special regulations affecting commercial travellers. Only samples having a commercial value are liable to duty. They must be examined on importation, and the duty payable deposited in the Custom House, with a declaration of the traveller's intention to re-export them. On re-exportation from the port of entry within two months (or in certain cases a longer period) the duty is refunded. The importation of catalogues is free, and their treatment subject to no regulations.

NORWAY.

Commercial travellers on arrival in Norway must obtain a trading licence from the nearest police authority. The charge for this licence for a period of 30 days from the date of issue is 100 kroner (£5 11s.), a similar sum being charged for each subsequent month.

Representatives of firms are also required to take out a trading licence when visiting customers with the local agents of the firms.

No separate licences are required by provincial or municipal authorities; the licence required by the central authorities allows the traveller to exercise his calling in any part of the country, but he must submit the licence for certification to the Director of Police on arriving in any place where he may wish to do business. No charge is made for this certification.

There are no special regulations regarding commercial travellers representing more than one firm or principals of firms travelling either to take orders or to visit their customers, but a licence is required for a principal just as much as for a traveller, whether actually taking orders or only travelling to enter into business connections.

Commercial travellers are not subject to income tax in respect of the sales they effect, nor are there any charges for them to pay other than those mentioned above.

Commercial travellers are not required by the Government to produce certificates or powers of attorney drawn up in the United Kingdom authorising them to act on behalf of the firms they represent.

No special dues are imposed on agents of foreign firms permanently residing in Norway.

Travellers may sell the samples they carry with them, but only direct from the ship, boat, or carriage in which they are imported, and only to Norwegian merchants or tradesmen who sell or consume such goods in their trade. Samples of jewellery made with gold, silver, or precious stones, watches, playing cards, and medicines may not be sold even under the above conditions.

No privileges are accorded to commercial travellers on the railways in the way of reduced fares or freight rates.

Samples which are evidently of no commercial value are exempt from import duty. On certain conditions drawback is granted of duty paid on other samples if exported in the same condition as when imported and if notice is given on their importation. The samples may be re-exported from any port, not only from the port of importation. There are no regulations as to the time within which samples have to be re-exported.

There are no Customs regulations specially affecting catalogues brought by commercial travellers. The duty on catalogues is twenty-five öre per kilogram (14s. 1½d. per cwt.).

PANAMA.

A municipal tax of $10 (£2) for a licence available for one month is payable by commercial travellers. A separate licence is required for each municipal district visited for the purpose of taking orders. Travellers who only visit their customers, or come merely to collect debts, are not subject to any charges. Commission agents and representatives of foreign firms resident in the Republic are placed in three categories and pay £5, £3, and £2 a month according to their classification. Only samples of value are dutiable; the duty may be deposited in the National Treasury, with a view to the re-exportation of the samples; in the event of their being re exported the deposit will be refunded.

CANAL ZONE TERRITORY.—There are no restrictions unless a traveller disposes of his samples, in which case he would need a pedlar's licence, costing $2 (8s.), and available for a month.

PARAGUAY

Commercial travellers are divided into five classes, according to their business, paying half-yearly taxes of £74 16s. 7d., £54 8s. 5d., £34 0s. 3d., £24 9s. 9d. and £16 6s. 6d. respectively, at the following places: Asuncion, Villarrica, Encarnacion, Concepcion, and Villa del Pilar. At other points in the Republic licences are issued at one third of the above rates. A separate licence is needed in each municipality visited. Travellers selling the samples or goods they carry are not subject to any special licence.

Samples without value are admitted free of duty. Those having value pay duty, but the amount of the duty may be deposited in cash, to be returned provided the samples are exported within six months.

PERSIA.

Commercial travellers in Persia are not obliged to take out a licence, the only formality they have to observe being the production of a passport properly authorised by official representatives of the Persian Government in the countries from which they come.

With regard to samples, these have to pay duty, except where too small to have a market value. Samples of piece goods not more than 30 centimetres in length are admitted free.

The importation of firearms is prohibited in Persia, and samples of these goods can only be admitted by express authority of the Government.

PERU.

The regulations provide that Customs duty on all samples must be paid, either in cash or by bank draft, at the time of entry, but the amount so paid will be refunded if the samples are re-exported within a period fixed by the Customs in each particular case, but never exceeding three months. Only one specimen of each article may be imported.

Should a commercial traveller enter Bolivia through Mollendo with his samples and not return to Peru, he must send a certificate signed and visé by the Peruvian Consul at La Paz, to the effect that the said samples have entered Bolivia. The responsibility of the agent at Mollendo then ceases and he can withdraw the bond he has given, there being no duties leviable in Mollendo on articles in transit to Bolivia. The Arequipa municipality compels travellers to take out a licence, the cost of which is £2 10s. per quarter.

PORTUGAL.

No special regulations exist in Portugal affecting commercial travellers, but if, with this, they combine the business of hawkers, they will, in some towns, have to provide themselves with a municipal licence, which may be either gratuitous or subject to special taxes. The industrial tax, to which commercial travellers are liable, varies with the locality.

Samples of goods up to 500 grammes weight (except manufactured tobacco) may be imported duty free, provided the duty leviable would not exceed 300 reis. (Raw tobacco may only be imported into the Republic by the Tobacco Company of Portugal.) On other samples marks of identity are placed by the Customs authorities at the time of importation, and drawback is granted on the re-exportation of the samples in the same condition within one year.

BEIRA.—The licence for a commercial traveller costs £10 for each visit lasting not more than one month.

MOZAMBIQUE.—The Mozambique Company (Portuguese East Africa) have now ceased to levy the 3 per cent. transit duty formerly required in respect of commercial samples carried by commercial travellers passing through the Province of Mozambique, either to or from British territory. As this transit duty is not levied in the Province of Lourenço Marques, it follows that it is now non-existent (as regards travellers to or from British territory) throughout Portuguese East Africa.

ROUMANIA.

British commercial travellers visiting Roumania for business purposes are required to exhibit, besides their passports, a certificate of legitimation. The Commercial Agreement between Roumania and the United Kingdom of October 31, 1905, provides that certificates issued by Chambers of Commerce in the United Kingdom to British commercial travellers will be accepted in Roumania provided that they contain in substance the particulars contained in the form of certificate drawn up by the Roumanian authorities; this form is in essence similar to that used by British commercial travellers in Russia.

Commercial travellers are not allowed, under penalty, to sell any samples whatever of their goods.

Commercial travellers' samples without commercial value are admitted into Roumania duty free, whilst in the case of models or samples of value no duty is charged, provided they are re-exported or placed within a Customs warehouse within a certain period, which can in no case exceed 12 months, and provided that certain formalities to safeguard the revenue are complied with.

Aliens travelling or residing in Roumania have to obtain permits, which are issued only to persons already provided with passports or similar documents, which should be visé at the consulate or legation in Roumania. Permits are issued by the prefect of the district, except in Bucharest, Jassy, Craiova, and Galatz, where they are granted by the prefects of police. Foreigners arriving in the country, who intend to remain over eight days, must procure permits within 24 hours.

RUSSIA.

The following rules are to be observed by commercial travellers in Russia:

1. Merchants, manufacturers and other persons or firms engaging in trade who can prove, by the production of certificates (carte de légitimation), issued by the proper authorities of their respective countries, that they are entitled to engage in commerce and industries and that they have paid the rates and taxes prescribed by the law, have the right either personally or through commercial travellers in their employ to purchase goods or take orders for goods in Russia.

2. In order to enjoy the rights in this respect which are conferred by Russia through the Conventions on the subjects of the most favoured countries, the said merchants, manufacturers or persons must be provided with special trade certificates, the dues for which, levied in favour of the Treasury, are 150 roubles for a whole year and 75 roubles in case the said persons arrive in Russia at the beginning of the second half year of each year. Local rates are levied in addition to the Government tax and do not ordinarily exceed 30 per cent. of this tax. Commercial travellers have to provide themselves with the trade certificates at the Custom House on their arrival in Russia. These certificates hold good from the date of issue up to January 1st of the following year and are affixed to the passports of the commercial travellers. These latter are bound to present the certificates, together with the carte de légitimation as above, to the Courts of Exchequer or to the inspectors of taxes in the first town in which they arrive previous to commencing their commercial operations. The trade certificates can be obtained and paid for by foreign commercial travellers from the Customs Authorities on the Russian frontier. The trade certificates can be issued in the name of the persons who go to Russia, and in such case these persons need not provide themselves with personal certificates. The representatives of foreign commercial houses arriving in Russia exclusively for purchasing goods are not subject to the law relating to trade certificates, and consequently have to pay no taxes or rates whatsoever. Commercial travellers must, in addition to the trade certificate, also be provided with a personal clerk's licence, the dues for which do not exceed 50 roubles a year, or 25 roubles in case the said persons only arrive during the latter half of each year. The communal rate is about 10 roubles a year. A foreign commercial traveller who represents several commercial firms must, for carrying on operations in Russia, have one trade certificate in his own name for personal business of the 4th category, and each of the firms on whose behalf he travels in Russia must take out a trade certificate in amount not less than 150 roubles.

Samples of no value are duty free. Samples of value are admitted on deposit of duty payable, which sum will, under certain conditions safeguarding the Customs, be refunded to the traveller if the goods are exported within one year.

FINLAND.—The Russian regulations for commercial travellers are not applicable in Finland, and there is no tax on commercial travellers in that country.

SALVADOR.

Commercial travellers have to pay a tax of $50.00 silver in the Municipality of Salvador. Elsewhere there are no taxes applicable to them. On all samples duty must be paid or bond given in case the samples are not taken out of the country within a specified time. On taking out the samples the duty is refunded or the bond released as the case may be.

SANTO DOMINGO.

No special laws exist regarding commercial travellers unless they dispose of their goods, when they are liable to a tax of $50 (£10 8s. 4d.) in each centre in which they do business.

As regards the admission of samples, if samples are of value, duty may be deposited or guaranteed, in view of re-exportation within 60 days from any port in the Republic, in which event the deposit will be refunded or the guarantee released as the case may be.

SERVIA.

Commercial travellers are at liberty to travel for business purposes in Servia free from any licence or tax, on condition that they have a legitimation certificate drawn up in the prescribed form and signed by the competent authority in the country of origin. This certificate does not, however, give the right to hawk goods or to sell to private persons.

Samples and patterns are only free of duty when they have no commercial value; otherwise the amount of duty chargeable will have to be deposited with the Customs, who will return it when the samples leave the country if they are re-exported within 12 months.

SIAM.

Travellers from all countries are accorded the same treatment.

Commercial travellers are required to submit a complete list of samples in their possession and to deposit at the Custom House an amount sufficient to cover the duty on them at the tariff rates. When leaving, the list is compared with samples remaining in their possession and the amount of their deposit returned, less duty on such articles as may have been sold, provided that more than six months have not elapsed since importation. (N.B. On written application this period may be extended to not more than two years.) When the samples are of such a nature that they are obviously not saleable, no deposit is required.

SPAIN.

British commercial travellers provided with certificates of identity issued by Chambers of Commerce in a prescribed form and bearing the seal of the Board of Trade, may exercise their calling in Spain, without being liable to the payment of any tax. Such travellers as do not possess a document of identification must submit to the regulations laid down for Spanish commercial travellers and must be provided with a licence.

Travellers bearing samples of precious stones and jewellery are subject to a licence of 100 pesetas for one year, plus a surcharge of 20 per cent., on which surcharge there is also payable 40 per cent. for municipal tax, and a collecting tax of 6 per cent.

Commercial travellers who sell their samples, or who take orders from private individuals, are liable to the industrial tax of 2,000 pesetas per annum.

Samples of dutiable goods imported by commercial travellers are exempted from duty on observance of the Customs formalities necessary to ensure their re-exportation or re-warehousing.

SWEDEN.

Commercial travellers wishing to exercise their calling in Sweden must obtain, at a cost of 100 kronor (£5 11s.), a licence from the tax collector of the town of the district in which they happen to be at the time of payment. Before entering into business negotiations in any town, this licence must be produced to the police authorities to show that the tax of 100 kronor has been duly paid. The licence is available for 30 days from the date of issue, and an additional 50 kronor (£2 15s. 6d.) is charged for every 15 days after the first 30 days.

Samples of no commercial value are not subject to duty; samples of value are liable to the ordinary rates of duty. When declaring samples at the Custom House the traveller must produce a certificate of his calling, i.e., a certificate of the authorities in his country to the effect that he himself or the person in whose service he is pays the prescribed taxes and fees in the town where he resides. Duty paid on samples can be recovered provided notice of their intended exportation has been given to the Customs authorities beforehand. The samples are then sealed by the Customs before delivery and are re-examined on exportation; if any are found to be missing duty is payable thereon. Samples need not be exported from the port at which they arrived. Malmö, Gothenburg and Stockholm are, however, the only places from which samples can be exported when repayment of duty is desired. The period allowed for exportation in order to obtain repayment of duty is six months, but this may be extended on application for a further three months. Commercial travellers may not bring with them goods of any other character than samples, and may in no case sell any of the samples or goods they have brought with them.

Special regulations are in force regarding the right to travel in Sweden with unstamped articles of precious metals. A commercial traveller importing such goods must deposit 30 kronor per kilo. for articles of silver and 75 kronor per kilo. for articles of gold, or give security for a corresponding amount. This deposit or security is recoverable in the same way as for ordinary samples. Silver imported into Sweden must be 830/1,000 pure, and gold 18/24, or 18 carat.

SWITZERLAND.

British commercial travellers must obtain a licence in order to do business in Switzerland; this licence is issued gratis to travellers doing business only with such Swiss firms as re-sell the goods sold to them through the traveller, or use them for their own industrial purposes. In all other cases (e.g., in the case of commercial travellers who deal with private individuals) a charge of 100 francs (£4) is made for a licence available for six months. Annual licences cost 150 francs (£6). In order to obtain a licence, whether issued gratis or not, British travellers must produce a certificate of identity issued by a British Chamber of Commerce, or other competent authority, stating that the firm for which they travel is authorised to carry on operations in the United Kingdom. On presentation of this certificate the requisite licence to trade may be obtained from the authorities of the canton first visited by the traveller.

The sale of samples is considered as hawking, and is subject to canton licences.

Commercial travellers' samples may be imported under bond ("passavant"), which is cancelled on their re-exportation within one year, provided certain formalities for the protection of the revenue have been complied with.

TUNIS.

No special regulations are in force affecting commercial travellers. Samples having a retail value are subject to duty, which may be deposited with a view to re-exportation, and be refunded on satisfactory proof that the goods have been re-exported within six months of their entry into the country.

TURKEY.

There are no regulations in force in Turkey specially affecting commercial travellers, and consequently no special licences are required, even if the traveller sells the samples he carries. Commercial travellers visiting the Ottoman Empire will meet with no hindrance when they are provided with passports en règle.

The import duty on travellers' samples not for sale is refunded at the place of export if the exportation takes place within six months. To benefit by this facility, travellers must produce two copies of a special printed form of declaration of the quantity and quality of the samples and the number of cases, with their marks, numbers and contents. Only one sample of a kind may be introduced.

These declarations will be compared and registered, the value of the goods estimated, the duty paid and a receipt given. The samples will then be separately marked with a lead seal for the purpose of identification. One halfpenny is charged for each seal unless such seal is provided by the traveller.

One copy of the declaration, bearing the seal of the Custom House, will be returned to the traveller, and will enable him during six months to clear his samples through any Custom House in the Empire and to claim at the last Custom House the refund of part of the duty originally paid on those of the samples which he re-exports.

Samples of no value or of which no use can be made are exempted from duty. These instructions do not apply to articles of jewellery, or gold or silver articles, nor to samples arriving from a privileged Turkish province to a foreign country or vice versa.

TRIPOLI.—There are no special regulations applicable to commercial travellers as such, so that if any question of taxation were to arise they would probably be taxed as employees of business houses (100, 75, or 50 piastres, according to grade), or else as hawkers (20, 15, or 10 piastres, according to grade). (1 piastre= 2·16d.) Dutiable samples are admitted free on deposit of duty, which will be refunded if the goods are re-exported within one year.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

No special regulations or taxes exist affecting British commercial travellers or principals, and no licences are required by them.

An agreement has been arrived at between Great Britain and America whereby the Governments of both countries declare that an officially attested list of travellers' samples, containing a full description thereof, issued at the time of exportation by the consular authorities of the country of import established in the country of export, shall be accepted by the Customs officials of the country of import as establishing their character as samples, and exempting them from inspection on importation, except so far as may be necessary in order to comply with the law of the country of import.

Samples brought to the United States by British commercial travellers are not liable to duty if of no commercial value, and if of commercial value may be admitted free of duty under bond for a period not exceeding six months; or a deposit of the estimated duties on such samples may be accepted, such deposit to be returned on the exportation of the articles within six months from the date of entry. Bonds are to be in the prescribed form, with penalty in double the estimated duties, conditioned for due exportation of the samples covered thereby within six months from the date of the bond. Such bonds will be cancelled only upon the exportation of the samples at the port where they were imported, or, if they are exported at another port, upon the production of a certificate from the Collector of Customs at the latter port showing that the identical samples were duly exported under Customs supervision. Travellers taking samples into Canada or Mexico may bring the same back without payment of duty.

HAWAII.—Commercial travellers engaged in buying and selling or soliciting orders for goods on commission must pay an annual licence fee of $100. The annual fee for a licence to sell goods is $25. Special licences are required for the sale of tobacco, wine, spirits, opium &c. A fee of $50 is payable by pedlars. Import regulations are identical with those in force in the United States.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

Unless commercial travellers, by the sale or exchange of goods constitute themselves merchants or merchandise brokers, no licences are necessary. Such sales also render them liable to the percentage tax of one third of one per cent. upon the amount received.

Samples. — Samples imported by commercial travellers after examination and filing of a bond with security satisfactory to the collector of Customs for the exportation of said samples within three months after their date of importation are admitted free, provided that said samples shall be positively identified by the Customs authorities before exportation, and that their appraised value shall not exceed $2,000 in any one case. The period of three months allowed for their exportation may be extended by the collector of Customs at his discretion to a further period not to exceed three months. Advertising matter of no commercial value and samples in such dimensions or quantity as to render them unsaleable are admitted duty free.

URUGUAY.

Commercial travellers must obtain a licence, costing 100 dollars (about £21) annually, expiring on 31st December; the full annual charge must be paid, regardless of the period of the year in which the licence is taken out. Persons desirous of obtaining a licence must apply in writing on paper bearing a 50 cent stamp, to the Chief of Police of Montevideo, who will grant a certificate, which the applicant must present at the office of the Director-General of indirect Taxes in order to obtain the required licence.

Commercial travellers' samples are not subject to Customs duty provided a bond is given for their exportation.

VENEZUELA.

Commercial travellers of all nationalities are at liberty to follow their calling without licence or charge, unless they sell their samples, in which case they are liable to a seller's licence, the price of which varies in different localities. In the case of commercial travellers the taking out of this licence is not always insisted on.

Samples are admitted duty free, provided that security is given for their re-exportation within a given period.

ZANZIBAR.

No special regulations exist with regard to commercial travellers, nor are they subject to any licence or tax

Samples of no commercial value are admitted duty free. Samples having a commercial value are subject to duty, which may be deposited and will be refunded if the goods are re-exported within one year.

TREATMENT OF FOREIGN COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

FOREIGN commercial travellers can carry on their business in Great Britain without payment of any special tax, but when they solicit of take orders for goods for the sale of which a licence is required, they must themselves take out such licence unless their principals abroad are duly licensed in the United Kingdom.

Samples and patterns which they may bring with them and which do not bear any marks in contravention of the provisions of the "Merchandise Marks Acts" of 1887 and 1891 are, if they contain dutiable articles, to be declared at the Customs House on entry, and for purposes of identification are officially marked, free of cost, by the affixing of a distinguishing stamp or seal. The import duty leviable must either be deposited or security must be given for it. The party concerned will receive from the Customs, free of cost, a permit or certificate containing a list of the samples or patterns and specifying the nature of the goods and any such distinguishing marks as may be proper for their identification, as also the amount of duty leviable.

Exportation must take place within a period not exceeding 12 months from the importation of the samples or patterns, failing which the duty deposited will be carried to public account, or recovered from the security given. The patterns or samples may be exported through the Customs House at which they were imported or through any other. If presented for exportation within the prescribed period, the duty deposited will be refunded or the security released as the case may be, after identity of the articles has been established.

Samples and patterns of goods, readily recognisable as such, and which have no intrinsic value, are not considered as coming within the provisions of the "Merchandise Marks Acts."

Gold and silver wares, although not at present subject to import duty, are, if intended for sale (but not if for private use), retained by the Customs until they have been assayed as required by the Act 46 and 47 Vict., cap. 55. The duty formerly leviable on articles of this kind (gold, 17s. per oz. troy; silver, 1s. 6d. per oz. troy) must, therefore, be deposited on the importation of samples of such goods by foreign commercial travellers until the samples are exported through the Customs.

In virtue of arrangements made by His Majesty's Government with the Governments of France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland and the United States of America, the following facilities are accorded by His Majesty's Customs in the clearance of samples of commercial travellers from those countries; similar facilities are also accorded to samples of commercial travellers from the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, and British India:—On the production by the traveller of a list or declaration containing a description of the samples brought by him, officially attested by the proper authority in the country of exportation, examination of the samples by Customs officers may be limited to ascertaining that they are fully enumerated on the lists produced; further, should the samples bear the marks, stamps or seals of the country of exportation, no additional marks or seals for purposes of identification will, as a rule, be affixed by Customs officers in the United Kingdom.

BRADSTREET'S

FOUNDED IN 1849.

Offices and Connections throughout the Commercial World.

Briefly stated, the business of The Bradstreet Company consists in gathering and supplying to its clients information which reflects the financial condition and the controlling circumstances that surround seekers of credit in every land, thus promoting safety in the transaction of commercial business. In procuring and verifying its information every source of any value is carefully consulted for the purpose of justifying its claim as an impartial and dependable authority concerning the factors which have a bearing on commercial affairs and mercantile credit.

The Company's offices and connections have been steadily extended in every direction since the beginning of the Institution's existence more than sixty years ago. As a result of the wide ramifications of its service now existing, merchants in any city on the globe may, with confidence, enter into business relations with merchants in any other city, however remote, when they have as a guide the knowledge which it is possible to get through the medium of this great Organization.

The value of Bradstreet's reports as safeguards against losses is so well recognised in commercial circles that it would be hard to find a market of any consequence where the benefits derived from their use are not familiar.

Subscriptions are based on the service furnished and are available only to reputable wholesale, jobbing and manufacturing concerns as well as responsible financial, fiduciary and other business corporations. Specific terms may be obtained by addressing the Company at any of its offices.

THE BRADSTREET COMPANY,

Executive Offices :

346-348 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY, U.S.A.

Sole Agents in America for the Institute W. Schimmelpfeng, Berlin, Germany.
